Over Here and Over There....

By John O'Donnell, sports Editor, Davenport, Ia., Democrat.

Over there they drill to die.
Over here we play to live
They march into trenches. We march into stadiums.
They pay off on murder. We pay off on base hits.
They have a mouthpiece. We have a megaphone.
The "B" in their book of rules stands for blood. In ours it means baseball.
They rattle the sword. We rattle the bat.
Every batter who steps to the plate has two strikes on him over there. He can never be even with the pitcher.
Over there it is a steel helmet. Over here it is a peaked hat.
Applause of the enemy is punishable by death. Over here the rival pitcher gets as much credit as the town twirler.
Over there they are signed up. Over here we sign up.
They die when drafted. Over here the draft is a promotion.
There are only two leagues over there, the rulers and the people. We have the majors, the Double A, the A-1, the A, B, C and D leagues to say nothing of the semi-pros and the amateurs.
Over there they are ordered. Over here we barter.
The firing squad over there means a gang of men poising guns as a doomed soul.
Over here it means a group of .300 hitters.
Over there they have a plaything, the gas mask.
Over here we play with a ball and bat.
Their hero (for publication) is a destructionist.
Ours is the home run king.
Mr. John Public is the forgotten man over there.
Over here he is the dictator.
They swing at human heads. We swing at baseballs.
They collect on force. We collect on clues.
They talk about the size of a cannon ball. We argue about the thickness of the cover of a baseball.
"Out" over there means death.
Over here it merely means retirement from the paths.
It takes a firing of a church, a smearing of a business house or destruction of human beings to get the headlines across the ocean.
Over here the illness of a star first baseman is given the big type.
Pain is the keynote over there.
In our land they pay off on fun.
The leaders are hogtied over there. A 21-year-old farm boy pitching a one hit game over here rates more notice than a carload of politicians.
Intermediation over there calls for a concentration camp at best, or at the worst a bullet. Over here a $10 fine or three days' suspension is meted out.
Over there men are judged like cattle. Over here a player can demand $30,000 a season and get it.
A flag means a funeral procession over there. Over here it designates a season's performance well done.
They speak of world wars. We speak of the world series.
Their czar rules with the iron hand. Our czar dispenses justice and protects the weak.
Their propaganda is poisonous. Ours is ballyhoo to get the crowd out in the sunshine.
They damn. We praise.
Persecution of individuals is a national pastime. In our land an O'Brien, Ginsberg, Olsen and Wysocki get together and make a swell infield.
Leader-worship over there is a duty. Over here we mix the razzberry with the honey and get a dandy combination.
They are arrested for thinking. We have our own opinions of umpires and get away with it.
Over there!
You take it. I don't want any of it, thanks.
I'll take the land where triples replace cripples, where the boom of a bat resounds louder than the boom of a cannon.
I want to see youngsters running the bases, not the gauntlets.
My country 'tis of thee — and baw!

Leaf Markets Feel Reaction From War

Richmond, Sept. 13.- (By VPA)- The outlook for sale of Virginia's tobacco crop, marked by disappointing prices already paid this season on Carolina and Georgia markets, took a pessimistic tone with the announcement of the Imperial Tobacco Company to withdraw its buyers from the North Carolina markets. This action caused grave anxiety among Virginia growers of bright tobacco since a considerable proportion of the highest quality bright leaf, as much as 35 per cent on some markets, is bought for British manufacturers by Imperial Company. Company officials said the buyers have been ordered withdrawn because of war conditions in Europe. As a result of these conditions and the withdrawal of Imperial buyers, Carolina tobacco growers and warehousemen have decided to suspend tobacco auction sales for an indefinite period. This "tobacco holiday" began Tuesday on the Eastern North Carolina, Border and South Carolina belts and Wednesday on the Middle belt, where sales opened on eight markets Monday. The Old belt, including markets in both North Carolina and Virginia, probably will not open on September 18 as scheduled, according to observers.

Decision to shut down the markets was reached Saturday at a conference of J.S. Ficklen, of Greenville, N.C., president of the Tobacco Association of the United States and a committee representing growers, warehousemen and AAA officials. Ficklen estimated that the Imperial Tobacco Company buys about 35 per cent of the better grades of tobacco in the Southeast. Under no circumstances, officials said, will any tobacco be sold after the deadlines, although tobacco put on the floors ahead of sales will be accepted. Warned that prices might "tail spin" if selling continued, the Board of 150 or 200 farmers, warehousemen and agricultural leaders, authorized a committee composed of Carolinians and Virginians to confer in Washington this week with J.B Hutson, assistant administrator of the AAA. They will discuss the possibility of a referendum on the 1940 crop, and also consider any method of proceeding with the 1939 output.

Hutson advised that "the first thing to do it to be definite about the size of the next crop." He continued: "I don't think you can get much for your tobacco until you decide about next year's planting. I make no promise about what you'll get even if you vote control. The situation in respect to tobacco is more precarious that I have ever seen it. We have larger supplies than ever before with which to meet immediate demand. I am not optimistic about any material increase in prices."

John R. Hutcheson, director of the Virginia Agricultural Extension Division of V. P. A., said it was his opinion the market will not reopen until a concerted effort has been made to determine the situation and what step is best for the growers. He declared "Virginia's lot is one of watching and waiting, ready to cooperate. I have not noticed that there has been any effect yet. There is no movement by growers, and the only dissatisfaction I have heard from them has been with the low prices now prevailing."

Tobacco men have pointed out at least two reasons why Virginians should be optimistic. One is that their tobacco is at the stage at which it can be protected for three or four weeks. The other is that if a boost in prices should result from the war, local growers, with the largest crop they have had in years, will be in a position to profit.

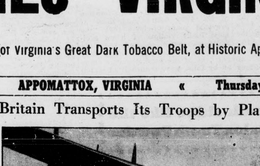
Britain Transports Its Troops by Plane



Mobilization of the English army was materially hastened by use of airplanes in the rush to get troops to the continent. Above photograph shows members of the Second Battalion of the Royal Ulster Rifles boarding a plane for the front. The Soviet Union, too, has laid great stress on its troop carrying planes and its mass parachute leaps from the air. Russia, in the past few years, has carried on extensive experiments with this type of air raid and has repeatedly declared them successful. Many army officials, however, declare the mass parachute leaps impractical for war.

Schools Open Today; New Building Here

School bells are ringing today in Appomattox county, as the summer vacation ends for teachers and pupils. Colored school will open tomorrow. White teachers held their annual pre-opening meeting yesterday.

Housed in new $112,000 quarters, hundreds of Appomattox children were on the local school campus bright and early this morning, to find their rooms. Gone are the small and cramped quarters of previous sessions here. In their place the pupils will find one of the most up-to-date buildings in the state, and plans for the most successful session in the 51-year history of the Appomattox high school.

The new school here was recently completed as a PWA project. Everything but the mere shell of the old classroom building was demolished, and two large wings added, so that virtually a new job resulted. The interior has been handsomely outfitted, and has elicited the admiration of all who have inspected it.

Tuesday was inspection and dedication day for the school. Nearly 1,000 people were shown through the building by student ushers. Refreshments were served in the large cafeteria room on the ground floor. Members of the community league immediately laid plans to furnish and equip this cafeteria room for use this session. Teachers were on duty in their new classrooms to officially welcome those inspecting the school. Particularly noticed were the individual steel lockers in the hallways for the pupil's use, the ample blackboard space, the library quarters, the athletic room, the teachers' lounge, and the great amount of new classroom equipment.

At eight o'clock Tuesday evening, there was a formal dedication program in the auditorium. Mrs. D. E Caldwell, Jr., president of the P.T.A., presided. Hon. Pearsall R. Drewry, fourth district congressman and Dr. Sidney Hall, of the State Department of Education headed the list of speakers, which also included J.A. Burks, county superintendent of schools; state senator Charles T. Moses, professor L. Crawley, principal of the Appomatox high school for the past thirty years; and Col. Joel W. Flood.

The entire county is justly proud of the school here, which served the county as well as the town, and extends its congratulations to the school board, officials, teachers and students, with wishes for continued service to the community.

Supervisors Met Yesterday

The Appomattox county board of supervisors met yesterday morning at the court house, and after transacting routine business, heard the final draft of seconard road allocations for the fiscal year July 1, 1939 to June 30, 1940, from W. S. Burton, resident engineer.

The sum of $23,000.11 has been allocated for maintenance and $12,162 for improvement and construction on the secondary system in the county. These totals are very slightly in excess of the amount spent in recent years for these purposes.

Under the heading of improvement, provision is made for about two miles of additional hard surfacing from Pamplin toward Hixburg. In the items for the town of Appomattox, provision is made for the expenditure of $1,080 on Church St. for reconditioning, retreating and paving ditches. This work will be done sometime during the fiscal year.

The town is having two streets in Hillcrest hard surfaced, and work the same is expected to begin next week. The streets in question, High and Bandana, have been solled this week.

The county finance board met on Tuesday, and heard from E. L. Burke, county treasurer, a favorable report on the county's financial status.
